
BidSL Updates Completed

Posted by Jim Allen - 2007/10/07 16:05

Several changes have now been put into place at BidSL.

The auction units themselves have all been significantly updated to a new version of the auction script. Highlights include:

The minimum bid is now set via chat when you are listing your auction. If you want to set a minimum bid, you simply say the amount now.

If you put a non-transferable item in the auction unit, you will receive a pop up error menu that allows you to choose to delete the item and reload, or to call a BidSL manager for assistance.

The auction units are now set for a seven day (week) rental by default and by touching the unit and chatting the time, you can set the auction to run for multiple weeks. However, if you would rather set your auction by days or hours, we can easily do this for you. Just IM Shannon Nohkan or Jim Allen if you would like to place an auction that runs by days or hours.

We have added a feature called BidSL anywhere. If you would like one or more BidSL auction units placed at your event, party, store, or location, all you need to do is ask. You can read more details here:<http://www.bidsl.com/content/view/24/31/>

We have added an area to the BidSL website to showcase merchants who frequently post auctions at the main BidSL auction house or at franchise locations. If you would like to be listed in this section (<http://www.bidsl.com/content/view/25/31/>), please let us know.
